Extending a Moodle Assignment Deadline for a Particular Student

It is possible in the Moodle Assignment activity to grant an extension for particular students to allow them to submit after the assignment’s cut-off date. Extending a cut-off date for a particular student is currently only available in the Moodle Assignment activity. If you wish to extend the cut-off date for a Turnitin assignment please contact the Center for Learning and Teaching for assistance.

To grant an extension to a student in a Moodle Assignment, first select the assignment’s link on the course home page:

On the page which loads, select View all submissions beneath the Grading Summary:
This page will display a list of students and either their submissions or a notification that the student has not submitted. Locate the student for whom you wish to extend the cut-off date and select the Edit menu associated with the student.

In the menu which loads, select Grant extension:

The page that loads provides an overview of the open date, the due date, and cut-off dates. Below that, you can set an Extension due date for the student.
Adjusting the Extension due date to a later date and saving the change will allow only the selected student to submit work past the original cut-off date. Repeat this process for any other students for which you wish to grant an extension.
