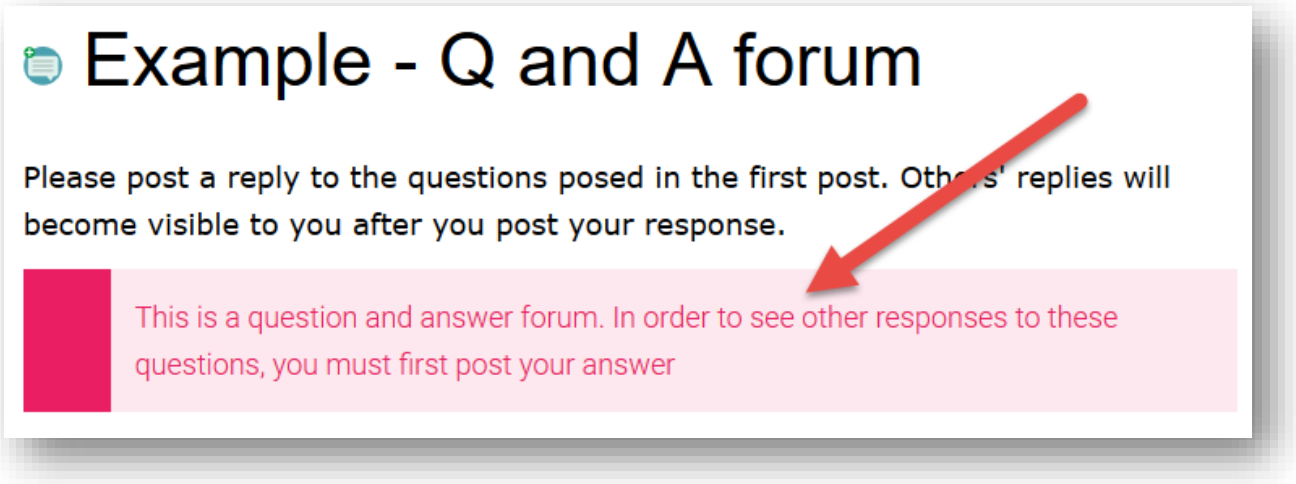
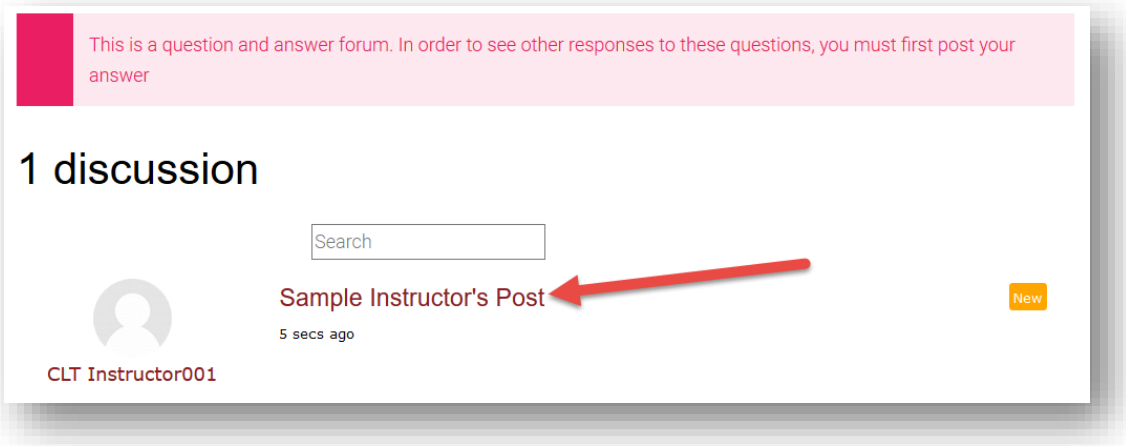
Posting to a Q and A Forum

In some of your courses, you may encounter a Q and A (question and answer) forum. The instructions for posting to this forum vary slightly from the normal forum types. As a student, you must reply to your instructor's post before other student's posts will be visible to you. There is a 30-minute wait after you post before you can see or reply to other student's posts.

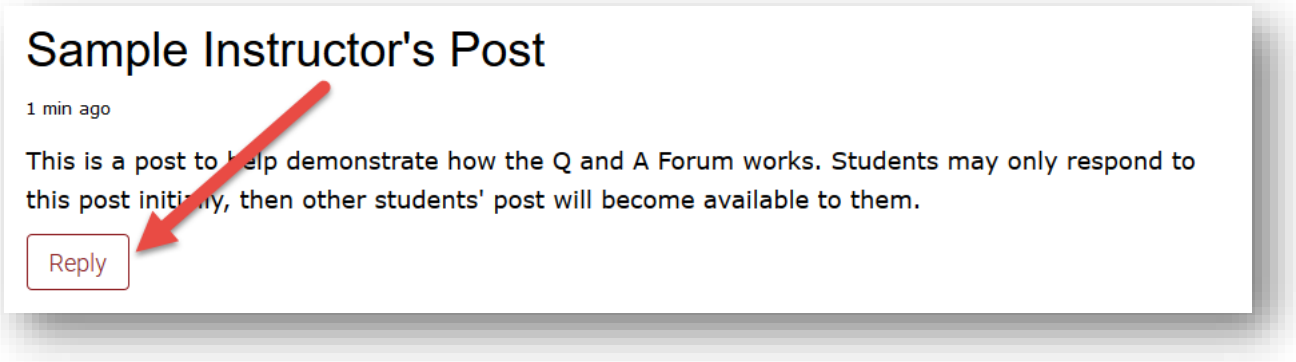
The following notification indicates that the forum is a Q and A forum:



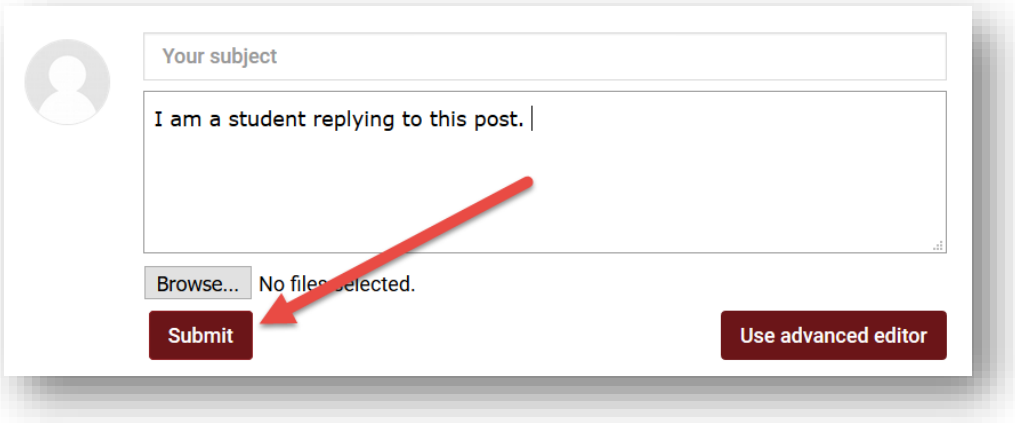
To reply to this forum, locate your instructor's post, just beneath the notification, and select the title of the post.



This will load the contents of your instructor's post. Find the reply button below the post and select it:



This will load an area for you to enter your reply. After typing your reply, select Submit:



After a 30-minute time period you will be able to view and reply to other student's replies using the same steps as indicated above.

If you have questions about this forum or need any other Moodle assistance, please contact Moodle Support at 405-682-7838 or online@occc.edu.