If you took the teamwork temperature at your office, what would the thermometer read? Chilly and cold? Normal and average? Or sizzling off the charts? Do you believe that the more team members know each other, both professionally and personally, the better they get along?

Jennifer Edwards and Jan S. Astani explore what solid, positive teamwork looks like and how to achieve, maintain and enhance that all important business element within your company. Find out how games, index cards and group sharing can strengthen the bonds between employees. Learn why the hiring process is so critical in getting the right people on board and why a positive mental attitude trickles from the top down.