On behalf of the faculty and staff of Oklahoma City Community College, I offer my congratulations to each of the graduates during this historic 40th commencement ceremony. Completing a college degree or certificate is a significant accomplishment—one that deserves tonight's lingering moment of celebration with family and friends.

While commencement symbolizes the completion of an academic program, commencement is by definition a beginning. It is the beginning of a new chapter in life that now includes something that cannot be taken from you—a college education. This beginning will lead some of you to continue your studies at a four-year college or university. For others, it is the beginning of a profession or advancement in your present career. Whatever the future holds for you, I am confident that your OCCC degree will provide you with the skills and knowledge to be successful and will open doors for additional opportunities in life.

To the 2013 graduates of OCCC, I am honored and proud to share this evening with you. Congratulations and best wishes for continued achievement.

Sincerely,

[Signature]
Oklahoma City Community College (OCCC) is one of the largest and most successful institutions of higher education in the state of Oklahoma. Enrollment in college-level classes and non-credit classes this past year exceeded 30,000 individuals. Since our founding over forty years ago, more than 330,000 students have attended OCCC and nearly 25,000 have received degrees.

Established with the belief that everyone should have access to education, OCCC remains one of the most affordable colleges in the state. The College enjoys a reputation of maintaining high quality in its programs, having dedicated and talented faculty and staff, and operating with a clear focus on students. One significant measure of success is how our students do after graduation.

The evidence clearly shows that our students who transfer to a university are more than able to meet the rigors of upper-division college work; and for those that enter or continue in a career, these graduates are fully prepared for the challenges of today’s workplace. Over 80% of the people in the Oklahoma City area have some connection with OCCC—many as students and graduates—but there is also a significant number who have participated in one or more of our programs offered to the community, including Arts Festival Oklahoma, the Cultural Arts Series, College for Kids, the on-campus Pathways Middle College High School, swimming and diving in our Olympic Aquatic Center, or attendance at one of the many public events, such as a town hall meeting conducted by a state- or nationally-elected official.

The positive result of OCCC on the quality of life and economic development of central Oklahoma is tremendous. A recent study placed the total annual economic impact of OCCC on the central region of Oklahoma at $322 million. OCCC has been described by leaders in the community as an indispensible pathway to a better life for many Oklahomans.

As Oklahoma City’s community college, OCCC is deeply committed to its mission—to provide broad access to learning that empowers students to complete a degree and that also enriches the lives of everyone in the community that we serve.

Dr. Glen D. Johnson is the Chancellor for the Oklahoma State System of Higher Education. He leads a state system comprised of 25 state colleges and universities, ten constituent agencies, two higher education centers and independent colleges and universities coordinated with the state system.

Dr. Johnson became 8th Chancellor of the Oklahoma State System in January 2007 after a national search. Before assuming the role of chancellor, he served as the 16th president of Southeastern Oklahoma State University in Durant, Oklahoma for ten years. During his tenure as president at Southeastern Oklahoma State University, he implemented an $85 million capital campaign to build a new student union, residence hall, arena and convention center, biology building, SBDC center and campus security, and a new large classroom building.

Dr. Johnson has also served as Director of Public Policy and Adjunct Professor of Law at the University of Oklahoma, College of Law. Prior to his work at the University of Oklahoma, he served in the Oklahoma House of Representatives from 1982 to 1996 and was Speaker of the House from 1990 to 1996. At the time of his election as Speaker, he was the youngest sitting Speaker in the United States.

Dr. Johnson is an honors graduate of the University of Oklahoma, with an undergraduate degree in political science and a Juris Doctor degree from the University of Oklahoma’s College of Law. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and currently serves on the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity National Foundation Board of Directors.

He is also a founding member of the Oklahoma Foundation for Excellence in 1986. He is a member of the Oklahoma Heritage Association’s Executive Board of Directors and was inducted into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame in November of 2006. He is a member of the Oklahoma City National Memorial and Museum Board of Trustees, a member of the Epworth Villa Board of Directors and the Oklahoma State Fair Board of Directors. He received an Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from Oklahoma City University in 2009 and has been named as a Life Fellow of The Fellows of the American Bar Foundation.

Dr. Johnson is the son of former United States Congressman Glen D. Johnson, Sr., and Imogene Johnson, and was born in Oklahoma City. He attended grade school in Washington, D.C. and graduated from Muskogee High School in 1972. Johnson and his wife Melinda, a teacher at Edmond Memorial High School, live in Oklahoma City.
SYMBOLS

As President of Oklahoma City Community College, Dr. Paul W. Sechrist uses three symbols of office during official functions.

The College Seal

The seal of the College, consists of a circle of symbols. One of the symbols is the international sign for mankind. Two of the symbols interlocked represent friendship. A circle of the figures represents the community.

The Presidential Chain of Office and Medallion

The gold chain worn around the President’s neck is symbolic of relationships within the College community. Each link of the chain binds one to another, much as the President is bound to faculty, staff, and students. A medallion is attached to the gold chain and is engraved with the College seal.

The Presidential Mace

Among ancient orders, the mace, a heavy staff or club made of wood and metal, was borne by, carried before or placed near a magistrate or other dignitary as an ensign of authority. This mace symbolizes the authority with which President Sechrist is entrusted. The mace has an oak staff and a nickel-plated copper head with silver and gold inlay, decorative gold roping, and symbols representing instructional divisions.

TRADITION

Academic Regalia

The origins of academic dress date back to the 12th and 13th centuries, when universities were emerging from religious organizations. For all scholars, whether student or teacher, the ordinary dress at that time was that of a cleric and the long robes that were worn may have been necessary for warmth in unheated buildings. Today, the official attire for most college graduates in the United States comes from the actions of an 1895 commission that agreed upon a code which established some sense of uniformity in the traditions handed down from European universities.

The caps are generally made of cloth wrapped around an Oxford mortarboard shape with a cap under the board. The standard tassel worn by faculty is black, except that the doctor has the right to wear a gold tassel. Candidates for degrees at OCCC wear a white tassel. There is no general rule for the position of the tassel on a mortarboard. However, many institutions have adopted the practice, during commencement exercises, of requiring candidates for degrees to wear the tassels on the right front side before degrees are conferred and to shift them to the left after degrees are awarded.

Through the style of the fabric and the cut, especially of the sleeves, the gowns indicate the level of degree of the wearer. The bachelor's degree gown has sleeves that are long and pointed; a master's degree gown has slits, and the sleeves are more standard; a doctorate-level gown is more elaborate and has three bars on each sleeve. Presidential gowns often have three bars on each sleeve.

The traditional hood is the most colorful and informative part of the regalia. The lining of the hood displays the colors of the university conferring the degree, and the trim around the edge represents the subject of the degree. Following are representative colors of some of the disciplines for master’s and bachelor’s degrees:

Graduation With Honors

During the Oklahoma City Community College Commencement, students graduating with an Associate Degree with honors wear a red stole with HONOR embroidered in gold. Students wearing gold stoles are members of Phi Theta Kappa, the international honor society. Students wearing a gold honor cord with blue and gold tassels are members of Psi Beta, the National Honor Society in Psychology for Community and Junior Colleges. Students wearing a royal blue stole are members of Kappa Beta.

The Civic Honors Program recognizes students who make a significant commitment to scholarship and service to their community. To qualify for this recognition a student must complete 50 hours of documented service during one academic year and prepare a portfolio which includes a written reflection, personal and professional goals, resume and academic transcripts.

Significance of the International Flags

The international flags on stage represent the hundreds of students, from more than sixty countries, who attend Oklahoma City Community College to learn, grow and lead. These students travel from all corners of the globe and face tremendous obstacles to reach our front doors. We honor these intrepid pioneers for their courage and persistence. Each flag represents both a dream and a promise. For our students they signify a personal dream of a better life. For our College they are a constant reminder that we must create a welcoming place for all members of our global community.
